

COLONY COLLAPSE DISORDER Controlled Study tests new product

Polycil Health is currently developing a new product to assist bees suffering from the affects of Colony Collapse Disorder (CCD). The product is made with natural, non-toxic substances that supplement the bees' immune and defense systems. Preliminary testing has yielded promising results and we are looking to expand our research. We are currently inviting interested beekeepers to participate in the testing. Participants will be provided with free product to conduct the test and will be asked to fill out a brief questionnaire to document the findings.

If you have been struggling to keep your hives alive with little or no success then you know the importance of continued efforts to find solutions. Participation will be limited, so contact us today.

Interested parties, please contact:

Kerry Sessions (714) 879-1221, ksessions@polycilhealth.com